

trouble if it got into America. It can live in persimmons and lots of other fruits, so it could spread into the woods around New York and gradually extend to the great fruit regions of the Eastern States."

In connection with the Ahmeur bou Ahmeur grape mentioned Mr. Taylor calls attention to the fact "that Mr. Husmann has fruited this variety in California for several seasons from stock obtained from Richter, Montpellier, France, some years ago. He is satisfied that it is distinct from Flame Tokay, though evidently of the same type."
